Marsaili – <http://www.medievalscotland.org/scotnames/gaelicgiven/women/marsail.shtml>

Dated 1401-1500 This is the modern Scottish Gaelic form of the latin “Marcella” related to the more common modern name Marjorie. The article clearly states that there is no pre-1600 evidence in Scottish Gaelic or Irish Gaelic. The pre-1600 Latin evidence indicates a “Marcella” spelling. The article goes on to state that it’s possible to speculate that a pre 1600 Scottish spelling could have been “Marsaili” but that there’s no direct evidence to support it.

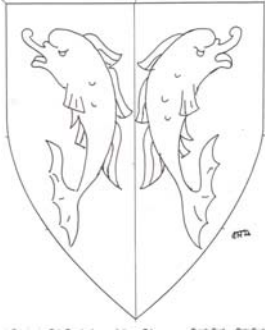

inghean -

<http://www.medievalscotland.org/scotnames/quickgaelicbyname/#simplepatronymicbyname> Standard byname formation in gaelic meaning “daughter of”

Aoidh - <http://www.medievalscotland.org/scotnames/gaelicgiven/men.shtml#a> Dated 1401 to 1600 and spelled “Aodh” after lenation would be spelled “Aoidh”

Petraeus – cognomen adjective form from Petra: Grant,”Guide to the Ancient World”, p489. Also adjective from petra “rock” – “Traupman” p226

10. Quintus Manlius Petraeus – New Device (note name change submission above; client’s name Robert le Medier de Rouen previously registered 10/1990) Gules, a sea lion haurient Or, charged with a heart gules.

11. Róis Inse Fhinne – New Name and Device – Client wishes a female name and cares most about the sound of the name. She will not accept major changes to the name.

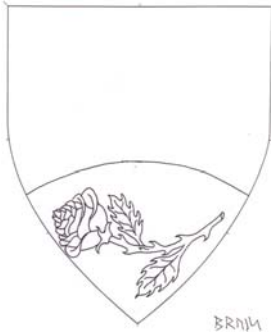

Azure, on a mount argent a garden rose gules slipped and leaved vert.

Róis – Irish Gaelic feminine given name – “O Corrain & Maguire (pp156-7 s.n. Róis) dates this name to the 16th century in Ireland.

Inis Finne – Irish Gaelic constructed placename meaning “white island”. Room (p66. s.n. Inishbofin) lists the Gaelic form as Inis Bó Finne meaning island of the white cow.

Room (p51 s.n. Dunfanaghy) gives the Gaelic form as Dún Fion achaidh meaning “fort of the white field”. Room (p24 s.n. Ballynahinch) lists the Gaelic form of this name as Baile na hInse “homestead of the island”. This shows the genitive (Inse) form of Inis (Nominative case)

Used in a woman's byname, a formal placename takes the genitive case and lenites: Inse Fhinne. See Pennsic worksheet attached.

12. Vladislav cel Înalt – New Name and Device – Client wishes a male name and is interested in Romanian authenticity. Argent, on a pale and a base gules, an inverted tau cross throughout nebuly Or.

Vladislav – Names from the Royal Lines of Moldavia and Wallachia

www.ellipsis.cx/~liana/names/others/romanian.html The name occurs three times in the data, in 1364, 1446, and 1523 (copy attached)

Cel – op.cit

-“there are two constructions in the surname that may be translated into English as “the [POS]”, where [POS] will stand for “parts of speech”. The construction <cel>+[adjective] can be translated as “the adjective”.

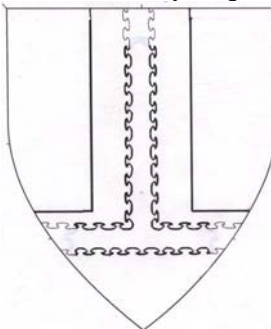

Înalt – Romanian-English Standard Dictionary; Mirouiu, Mihai; Hoppocrene Books, New York, 1996 (copies attached)

-înalt [înalt] adj. tall; high; lofty

-The byname is intended to mean “the tall”. It is constructed using an adjective, as the article indicates is proper. Other <cel> bynames in the article are: the terrible, the evil, the young, the old, the good, the big, the handsome, the blind.

-“Tall” is a physical descriptor like “handsome”, “blind” and (possibly) “big”.

-The dictionary used is admittedly modern, however given the sheer dearth of Romanian resources available (and paucity of Romanian written records prior to 1600) I would humbly request this word be given the benefit of the doubt.

Here ends the October 2005 Internal Letter of Intent. Contained herein are: 5 new name submissions, 6 new device submissions, 2 new badge submissions, 1 device resubmission, 1 badge resubmissions and 1 name change for a total of 16 submission items.

I would like to invite one and all to assist us with commentary on these items in order to provide our clients with the best possible service. Our next commentary meeting will be at Crown Tournament, in Stratford Ontario and I hope to have another one at Scottoberfest for those heralds, persuivants and Heralds unable to make it to the Crown meeting. Please advise me if one or the other is better for your attendance. I'd like to see as many heralds out in attendance as possible so we can further the knowledge of the Ealdormere College of Heralds and increase the commentary on our Internal items. The more comfortable we get commenting on our own submissions, the sooner we'll become comfortable offering commentary on other Kingdom's submissions. If you have any heraldry questions, the commentary meeting is usually preceded by a question and answer period. So please come out and lets talk about heraldry!

We will welcome commentary to Trillium Herald and myself no later than November 14th, 2005. As always, suggestions for improvements are gratefully appreciated.

I remain in service to the crown, the staff and the Dream,

Lady Cainer inghean hui Chatharnaig
